GOV. BOYD'S RESTORATION

"A CURSE TO ALASKA."

Capt. Healey's Strong Words About the Salmon Canning Monopolies. CRICAGO, Feb.15.-Capt. J. J. Healey, one of the leading men of Alaska, has arrived here on his way to Washington. He represents the interests of southeastern Alaska, and he is going to the national capital to warn the Secretary of the Interior that unless the grievances of the Indian tribes of the Thlinket nation are redressed there is danger of an Indian uprising there. Last July several of the tribes threatened the whites, and the United States steamer Pinta and a force had to hasten from Sitka to Chilcat to suppress the uprising.

The Indians again threaten trouble and it is to avoid it that Capt. Healey is now on his way to Washington. Canning monopolies are said to have outraged the rights of the natives and are supported in their aggressive policy against the Indians by the government officials in Alaska. The whites are alarmed and as they are practically defenseless they are in great danger. Capt. Healey says that as the result of the law passed by the last Congress there is danger of trouble in Alaska, the law referred to being that which permits a land patent to be granted for land for business or manufacturing purposes. "Under that law," says Capt. Healey "men have applied for surveys and patents for Indian lands which never have been ceded to the United States, and the whites have seized these ands against the protests of the Indian owners. But the immediate grievance of the Indian tribes is that the canneries that have sprung up threaten to destroy the salmon, the staple

"If the uprising starts it may be general, now that the Indians of the towns take for their own use every year hundreds of thousands of salmon. In the Chilcat country, where I have a trading post, there are three big canneries on Chilcat Iniet. It is the first salmon stream in southeast Alaska and the salmon run there for months. All the Indians of those parts depend on the All the Indians of those parts depend on the salmon of the Chilcat for their food, but the canneries are destroying their natural source of the food supply for the natives.

"These canneries are a curse to Alaska.

They seize even the smallest streams. Then they carry up a load of Chinamen and Fins from Victoria or Portland to do the work. These men sign contracts that prevent them from receiving a dollar in wages until their return from Alaska. The companies carry up the supplies for them, and the people of Alaska don't receive a penny's worth of benefit from the canners. Capt. Healy will also urge while at Washington that Congress help Alaska to be suitably represented at the world's fair.

AGAINST FREE SILVER. Report of the Minority of the Coinage Weights and Measures Committee. conservatively in all measures taken, with the view to holding the honor and credit of our party and the fair name of the state. It is not alone democracy which has been vindicated, but the principles of good, honest government. And while I stand upon a platform of principles enunciated by my party, none will claim that any of those principles contemplate willful harm to the state. I believe that on many questions democrats can co-operate with and accept co-operation from men for all parties. In addressing you today it has not been my purpose to make a speech, rather to extend to you an expression of my appreciation of your kindness and hearty acknowledgment of my thanks, therefore I shall be pleased to meet you personally in the executive apartment, and now extend you a cordial invitation to enter."

Let in the state of the state, it is steps be taken to secure an international agree ment. The silver men are finding that an impression that has been made upon some of the members who are themselves in fator of free coinage that tariff reform might suffer from the activity in pressing silver to the front is weakening them within their own ranks. They are insisting that they have no desire to force silver as an issue upon the party or to give the question prominence over the tariff. They insist that all they want is to be assured that in due time a vote will be had on the free coinage bill and that it will be for the tariff reform leaders to decide whether the vote on the silver bill shall be taken before or after the free-wool bill has been disposed. Some of the tariff reformers think that the silver question should be got out of the way speedily.

An excellent paper upon the "Myths of the Opera," by Mrs. Holmes. first to decrease the grade on this street. This grade is now twelve feet in 100. The ordinary maximum grade for city streets is 4-100, but after a careful study of the problem and esti-mating the cost of improvement it is decided to recommend for this street a grade of 6-100 for a distance of 800 feet. Beyond this the grade will be about 1-100. On the west side of 16th street is Meridian avenue, which gives access to Meridian Hill from 16th street. This street should be abandoned entirely south of Crescent street; the principal route to Meridian Hill would then be by Champlain avenue, Superior and Central streets.

The maximum grade on this route would be only 4-100. If this street is abandoned the west side of 16th street can be sloped and sod-ded. From 16th street to its junction with Crescent street the proposed grade of Meridian avenue will be one-tenth, which will give a route to Meridian Hill for all light-draft vehicles. Should it be considered advisable to retain this street it will be necessary to build a wall along the west side of 16th street and a suitable fence on the east line of Meridian avenue, or to purchase enough land to the west of said street so that the side slopes of 16th street seall not interfere with it.

street so that the side slopes of 16th street seall not interfere with it.

The estimated cost of the improvement of 16th street if Meridian avenue is abandoned, as recommended, is $20,000; if Meridian avenue is retained and a wall built along 16th street, $50,000; if Meridian avenue is retained and moved slightly westward, $23,000.

The only other special problem involved is the best grade to give Champlain avenue and Superior street. Superior street.

It will be seen that the raising of Superior street improves the grade on every street running north and south, and the raising of Champlain avenue makes it conform both to the proposed improvement of Superior street and to the established grade of 18th street. As the grade has already been established on Champlain avenue and a cheap class of frame houses built in conformity thereto some compensation should be made to the property owners for damaged done. should be made to the property owners for damage done.

All houses which are properly located within building lines should be raised to the new grade. My estimate includes the cost of raising these houses when necessary.

Adding 10 per cent for contingencies, the total cost for grading the streets in this section is $67,744.05, or, if Meridian avenue is abandoned south of Crescent street. $37.744.05

A NEW LIQUOR BILL.

Changes Made by the Commit Their Reasons. The Commissioners today transmitted to Section 2 defines the different classes of liquor dealers. It fixes the wholesale license fee at $300 instead of $25, as at present, and also makes the granting of the license subject to the approval of the Commissioners, which is now somewhat in doubt. It also changes the definition of wholesale dealers from these who will be sind of intervient. rs from those who sell all kinds of intoxicat ng beverages in quantities greater than one pint, not to be drunk upon the premises, to those who are authorized to sell only such iquors in quantities not less than one salion, except malt liquors, which they may sell in quantities not less than one pint. The small fee now charged for a wholesale license is an inducement to the keeper of every grocery to take out a wholesale liquor license; no consent of the neighboring residents being required. The fee should be at least one-half of the amount charged for a retail license which this bill proposes to raise to $600. This section also make the possession of the stock and appliances for carrying on the retail liquor

For the second offense the penalty is nearly doubled and there is added committal to the Westerstanding. the Washington Asylum for from six to twelve months at hard labor, unless the fine is paid sooner. The present fines are so small that the liquor sellers can profitably violate the laws persistently and pay the fines when convicted. The Commissioners think that the penalty should be sufficiently great to make it to the interest of the dealer to comply with the law. To prevent the licenses from with the law. To prevent the licenses from being taken out in the names of irresponsible parties they think it essential that the con victed party should be committed to the Washington Asylum at hard labor, in case of a second offense, until the fine is paid, and that the license be revoked. This section also provides for the punishment of those aiding and abetting violators of the law.

Section 3 prohibits the employment of females, excepting the wife or daughter of the proprietors, in bar rooms, and prohibits the playing of pool, billiards or other games in a com where liquors are sold.
